¥

Asking only a pale orange tree by a rubbed grey lake a leaf-full breeze through birch and pine late flies, duck's call squawk of crow this autumn wild to carry inside when I go

From Uncommon Prayer (Quarry Press) © Susan McMaster, Ottawa 1997. Please feel free to use this poem in any personal, educational, or non-profit context. To send me a comment, buy the book, or find more information, see http://web.ncf.ca/smcmaster/.